

Future Health Systems Innovations for equity

Newsletter...Abuja 2009...www.futurehealthsystems.org

This newsletter comes to you direct from Abuja, Nigeria, where the Future Health Systems Research Programme Consortium is currently holding their annual planning meeting. This meeting comes hot on the heels of a conference hosted by our partner the University of Ibadan from the 12-13 January to bring together academics, policy makers, civil society and private sector innovators and entrepreneurs in order to share strategies for making health markets work better for poor people. This newsletter explains more about who we are and what the conference was all about. If you want to know more feel free to contact us through our website. With best wishes, Kate Hawkins, Communications Officer, Institute of Development Studies, UK

ABOUT US

The purpose of the Future Health Systems Research Programme Consortium is to generate knowledge that shapes health systems to benefit the world's poor and to translate today's commitments to global health and development into sustainable improvements in health and reductions in poverty.

>>Read more...

NIGERIA WORK

Our partner in Nigeria is the University of Ibadan, College of Medicine, Faculty of Public Health. They are one of the leading research and teaching health institutions in Western Africa and are actively involved in programmes and research in health sector reform.

>>Find out more about their research...

IN THE NEWS

Our conference received extensive coverage in the Nigerian media including on the NTA TV channel and Channel TV.

>>Link to an article in the Nigerian Tribune...

BLOG

One of the conference presentations was featured on the STEPS Centre blog, The Crossing.

>>Take a look...

SLIDES

PowerPoint presentations from the conference are now available through SlideShare.

>> See our Future Health System page...